

OPSI

Office of Public Sector Information

Part of The National Archives

Funding Legislation: New Strategies for the Shift to Online

Carol Tullo

Controller of Her Majesty's Stationery
Office

10 December 2008

The Current Status

- Declining sale of print copies has led to decline in revenue
- The shift to online has led to increased access to legislation online
- Online legislation is “free” to end user
- But who pays for this new model of publishing legislation?

Charging the Producer

- Legislation must be produced
- Do producers of legislation pay for publishing?
- Delivers access to legislation
- Is economically sustainable

Maximising technological enhancements

- Improvements to technology used for publishing legislation online
- Reduces costs whilst increasing efficiencies
- Improves the relationship between publisher and user
- Transformational services that are relevant to users
- Government's aim is to deliver world-class online legislation services